ABOUT CONFERENCE

Education has witnessed a boom in digital transformation over the last few decades but COVID-19 pandemic has turned educational institutions more digital. Online learning and distance learning has become the reality and also made it clear to prepare our students socially and emotionally. Education 5.0 is the use of digital technologies to provide more humanized teaching with a focus on students' social and emotional development and improving the quality of life and sustainability. The focus of traditional education was on IQ (Intelligence quotient) but now the drift is into (EQ) Emotional Quotient and SQ (Social Quotient). Education 5.0 is a chain that links digital and technological knowledge to human social and emotional skills to promote well-being. In addition to developing technical skills, collaborative work skills, empathy creativity, conflict management, and more fluid communication must be taught and practiced. These are necessary to increase productivity, make day-to-day issues easier and minimize environmental impacts.

OBJECTIVES

- To bring the teaching process closer to technological advances and create more direct communication among professionals.
